COVID-19 Vaccination Arrives in Florida New COVID-19 Cases are on the Rise

The first doses of the COVID-19 vaccine arrived in Florida Monday and have been distributed throughout the state. The State Department of Health has prioritized those they believe are most at risk:

1st: residents and staff of long-term care facilities

2nd: high-risk frontline health care workers

3rd: police and fire first responders

Plans for distribution to the general public have not yet been announced.

Community members need to continue to use masks, stay 6 feet from others and wash their hands to reduce the risk of transmission. These safety steps will need to be followed through most of 2021.
